EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

BLACK LIVES MATTER ACTION PLAN

San Francisco State University, the premier comprehensive public university in San Francisco, is devoted to educational equity and the intellectual and personal growth of its students. Black Lives Matter @ SF State aims to strengthen access and equitable academic opportunities for Black students on campus and in the greater Bay Area. In coordination with campus and community partners, SF State continues its commitment to social justice and equity for the Black community through our BLM @ SF State action plan.

EMPLOYEE WORKSHOPS

The Division of Equity and Community Inclusion has been working to increase and develop employee workshops that address anti-bias education. Through the Leadership for Social Justice workshop series, students, faculty, and staff come together and gain skills to improve campus climate.

In Fall 2020, six workshops covered:

- Understanding Anti-Blackness (two hosted sessions)
- Understanding Implicit Bias
- Understanding Pronouns and Gender Identity
- Understanding Cultural Appropriation & Cultural Appreciation
- Understanding Micro-Aggression

In addition to the Leadership for Social Justice workshops, the University offered members of the University Leadership Council anti-bias training hosted by the California Faculty Association and the Division of Equity and Community Inclusion. The University has also been in consultation with organizations to implement anti-racism/diversity/anti-Blackness training in Spring 2021 for all Management Personnel Plan (MPP) employees.
In coordination with Faculty Affairs and the Division of Equity and Community Inclusion, the campus prioritized recruiting diverse faculty during the 2020-2021 faculty search process. Continuing the practice of meeting with search committees developed in AY 2018-19 as part of our grant from the Chancellor’s Office for Advancing Faculty Diversity in Hiring, the Office of Faculty Affairs coordinated and met with the hiring committees for fifty-one (51) tenure-track faculty searches in Fall 2019 for the 2019-2020 faculty search process. Although the number of searches has fallen off during COVID, the Office of Faculty Affairs continues to coordinate and meet with hiring committees such as the search committee for the senior associate vice president of Enrollment Management and a new tenure-track faculty search in the Department of Computer Science.

Implementing a collaborative approach, the formation of an Inclusion Leadership Team demonstrates our approach to bring together a diverse group of colleagues to develop and administer ongoing efforts around this work. We continue to focus on the departmental search committee (with the department chair) as the unit of intervention. We are engaging a "peer-facilitated conversation approach" rather than an "expert-led training model," resulting in peer-facilitated inclusivity sessions for each search committee. All participants expected to engage in a conversation about their values and expectations regarding inclusion, equity, and diversity in hiring.
Also, the associate vice president of Human Resources (AVP of HR) and the Employment Services team met in late January early February 2020 to discuss providing training for search committees that includes unconscious bias. The Department also discussed creating a set of other courses for new hires as part of their onboarding, including unconscious bias. All training will be conducted on CSU Learn. The associate vice president of Human Resources on October 14th recommended postponing the Fall 2021 timeline for search committees in light of the executive order signed by President Trump. The timeline for onboarding courses will be determined after President-elect Biden is sworn in.
The Office of Faculty Affairs and Professional Development is the recipient of a grant from the Chancellor's Office for a focus on the retention of faculty of color/BIPOC faculty, applied for and awarded in Spring 2020, which will be implemented in AY 2020-21. Proposal and award letters are attached as an appendix.

As defined in the Office's proposal, the initiative's goal is to reduce systemic barriers in retention by building cultural competencies in the tenure-track faculty mentoring process across all departments and colleges. Focusing on increasing awareness of the effects of implicit bias in decision making and on training departments and colleges to develop targeted retention and mentoring strategies, the strategy is to focus on a discreet group of department chairs. We are in the process of offering mentoring workshops, as well as a faculty learning community for a representative group of department chairs. Because we believe that mentoring is one of the most crucial factors in retaining faculty of color, participation will be incentivized by providing stipends to participants.
Progress: A group of fourteen chairs across the six colleges has convened to undertake this work. Deans nominated some chairs, and others self-nominated. To date, the Faculty Retention Working Group has met four times during the Fall 2020 semester, with another meeting scheduled for December. Each meeting is 90 minutes in length and has been comprised of an introductory session in which members identified objectives and goals; a two-part antiracist training session, Interrupting Racism, sponsored and facilitated by the California Faculty Association (CFA); and a listening session to a campus faculty member of color.

The panelists for the listening session were six tenured faculty members who were nominated through Faculty Affairs or with college offices’ assistance (Deans/Associate Deans). All panelists identified as BIPOC (Black, Indigenous, and people of color) faculty and were asked to share their campus experiences with small breakout groups within the Faculty Retention Working Group. No administrators were present at these sessions, nor were the sessions recorded. Each group was asked to take notes of key thoughts and ideas presented by the guest panelists, to be shared with the larger group.

Facilitation, scheduling, and tracking of this initiative’s sessions are coordinated through Associate Vice President for Faculty Affairs Carleen Mandolfo and Associate Dean Todd Roehrman in the Office of Faculty Affairs. Beyond scheduling and coordination, these efforts have included the creation of an iLearn site for the group where resources have been posted, such as key session recordings for reference, readings, podcasts and videos shared in the antiracist training, and an extensive bibliography (included as an appendix) compiled from individuals within the group, CEETL, and CFA.
With these foundational sessions, the working group will continue to meet, broken out into smaller Learning Communities, to discuss and strategize actions and recommendations for the campus. As the working group continues to meet throughout the academic year, they will reconvene the larger whole, hear strategies and recommendations, and develop an action plan for our faculty community.

Each member within the working group will receive a stipend at the end of the AY upon completion and participation in the initiative. Panelists for the listening session will also be offered a stipend. All this and the fees associated with the antiracist training sessions will be funded from the Chancellor's Office grant.

In the Fall of 2020, the University welcomed five new African American faculty members.

The Center for Equity and Excellence in Teaching and Learning (CEETL): Pedagogies for Inclusive Excellence

CEETL is committed to the daily action of unity that supports justice, equity, diversity, and inclusion. This Summer and Fall, CEETL has contributed these efforts towards the BLM @ SF State initiative through:

CEETL Solidarity Statement
First published in the Juneteenth Issue of the CEETL Circles newsletter, CEETL has posted this Solidarity Statement.
CEETL Circles Newsletter
CEETL dedicated its June 19, 2020, CEETL Circles newsletter to antiracist pedagogies. CEETL Circles is sent to 2,224 SF State faculty and administrators.

Antiracist Hiring
The Center for Equity & Excellence in Teaching & Learning hired five new temporary staff members with CARES-2 funding allocated to support remote instruction transition. The position descriptions used antiracist language to recruit a diverse cohort of staff.

CEETL has posted the following full-time temporary staff positions, funded through a CARES 2 allocation that will allow the Center to further extend support for faculty teaching online in the Fall. These positions will assist the campus community in designing and developing learning experiences that apply inclusive, antiracist, and liberatory pedagogies in support of student success.

The Center welcomes persons of all races, ethnicities, religions, colors, ancestries, ages, disabilities, genetic information statuses, genders, gender identities, gender expressions, marital statuses, medical conditions, national origins, sexes, sexual orientations, covered veteran statuses, formerly incarcerated statuses, or any other protected statuses.

Antiracist Pedagogies Resources
First published in the Juneteenth Issue of the CEETL Circles newsletter, CEETL has posted these resources for Antiracist pedagogies.
Antiracist Faculty Development through JEDI PIE Institute
CEETL has facilitated Summer and Fall 2020 cohorts of JEDI (Justice Equity Diversity & Inclusion) PIE (Pedagogies for Inclusive Excellence) Institutes, with a current total of 386 faculty participants over the Summer and Fall 2020 cohorts. A Spring cohort will launch in January 2021. Developers and facilitators are diverse Black, Indigenous, and faculty of color.

Description: The JEDI PIE Institute builds a community of JEDI (Justice, Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion) protagonists through 10 hours of practice of developing antiracist pedagogy and dismantling white supremacy in online teaching. Special attention will be paid to accessibility and universal design for learning; microaggressions in teaching practices; antiracism in designing assignments and assessments; and centering student voice and experience. Participants will receive expert feedback on their responses to prompts and the opportunity for individual consultations via office hours. Participants will identify and assess personal goals for antiracist pedagogy practice in online teaching; examine and demonstrate knowledge of historical and contemporary institutional and individual racism and white supremacy in education practice; assess current assignments, assessments, and teaching practices through critical race perspective; and design strategies for inclusive and equitable engagement.
High-Impact Quality Learning & Teaching Course Redesign Projects
CEETL included antiracist outcomes in the call for HI-QLT Course Redesign projects, which encouraged faculty to expand their online teaching skills within a project-based faculty development community. A condition of funding was that faculty apply inclusive, antiracist, and liberatory pedagogies to support student success to this redesign. This initiative funded 48 projects, redesigning 83 courses, including 225 faculty, and affecting 16,855 students. The redesign teams were encouraged to complete the CEETL Online Teaching Lab and JEDI PIE Institute to inform their redesign projects and deepen their HI-QLT faculty learning community. Funding for these projects was prioritized in terms of potential positive impact on student success related to high enrollment numbers, large equity gaps, high DFWs, critical courses for progress to degree, or challenging courses to teach in an online environment. Redesign teams will:

- Work together to adapt and develop student engagement and assessment activities for online modalities.
- Apply inclusive, antiracist, and liberatory pedagogies in support of student success to this redesign.
- Offer ongoing support to members of the course redesign teams.
- Celebrate successes, share course materials, teaching strategies, and approaches.
Campus Presentations
CEETL has provided the following presentations to the campus community on the Center's efforts to support BLM @ SF State:

- University Chairs Council: July 8, 2020
- University Chairs Council: August 17, 2020 (Specifically on BLM)
- University Foundation Board: September 16, 2020
- Academic Senate: September 18, 2020
- University Leadership Forum, July 2020

Faculty Retreat Save the Date: How to Be an Anti-racist University
CEETL is co-sponsoring the annual Faculty Retreat on January 21, 2021, and the theme will be How to Be an Anti-Racist University. This retreat will be virtual, and retreat highlights include:

- Plenary: SF State President Mahoney in Conversation with Chancellor-select Castro.
- Panel: Anti-Racism at SF State
- Working Groups: Opportunities for a variety of segments of SF State to engage in multi-directional discussions around anti-racism work.
- RSCA Showcase: Recent Faculty Research, Scholarship & Creative Activities.
To promote this retreat, CEETL has developed a Zoom background and email footer for use by the campus community.

Undergraduate Outreach and Recruitment
The Office of Enrollment Management has been working towards reengineering the admissions process at San Francisco State University to provide timely and accurate decisions for first-year and transfer students. The Admissions Office will implement a new Customer Relationship Management (CRM) System to deliver offer letters no later than 30 days before the decision deadline for the Spring 2021 term.

In addition to the new system, Enrollment Management has reimagined its communication plan to prospective students, welcomed a director of admissions, and is actively recruiting a senior associate vice president for Enrollment Management. The emphasis is focusing the Office of Enrollment Management on creating a robust retention and recruitment strategy that benefits overall admissions at SF State and creates opportunities for increased Black student recruitment.

The Division of Equity and Community Inclusion has also welcomed a Retention and Recruitment Specialist for the Black Unity Center who will collaborate with Enrollment Management to create focused outreach to prospective African American students in the region.

Graduate Recruitment and Ph.D. Pipelines
On June 19, 2020, the Division Graduate Studies published a message of solidarity (https://grad.sfsu.edu/content/letter-response-black-lives-matter-movement) with the Black Lives Matter movement and launched four interrelated initiatives aimed at identifying and removing administrative and cultural barriers that impact all BIPOC students; improving practices that encourage inclusion and equity; celebrating the academic success of graduate African American and Black students.
BLACK STUDENT SUCCESS

Initiatives included:

- A series of staff meetings during the Summer to engage in self-reflection and critique our approach to BIPOC students;
- A review of our practices in recruitment, outreach, and advising;
- An intentional outreach to Black undergraduate students in the Fall recruiting campaign;
- A compilation of graduate African American/Black students' academic success stories to highlight them.

Staff members formed an unofficial committee to explore ways to reflect, correct, listen, and learn about themselves and our Black and brown students. The latter have been historically marginalized by and in academia. The committee’s mission statement was centered on the belief that as Student Service Professionals in the CSU, we could make a social justice impact by committing to delivering culturally responsive, equity-minded student services. Meetings took place throughout the Summer, each led by two team members who assigned material beforehand and facilitated discussions. The dean and associate deans attended the meetings. The following themes, associated materials, and discussion prompts were used:

- July: Anti-Blackness on Campus: Implications for Educators and Institutions webinar.
- August 7: Our Community - Population of SFSU Grad Students/Sense of Belonging
The Division of Graduate Studies has also increased its outreach and visibility this Fall by attending the McNair Scholarship Fair and HBCU College Fair.

Ph.D. Pipelines
The work of the Fellowships Office addresses strengthening pipelines to graduate education, eliminating equity gaps, and supporting Black student success.

San Francisco State University's fellowship recipients – whether supported by CSU programs such as the California Pre-Doctoral Program and Chancellor's Doctoral Incentive Program (CDIP), by national fellowships such as the Ford Foundation Predoctoral Fellowship, or by University-sponsored Student Enrichment Opportunities (SEO) awards offered by COSE – receive high touch, personalized support in pursuing their academic and professional ambitions.

- Four African American students from SF State have been named Chancellor's Doctoral Incentive Program (CDIP) Fellows between 2014-2020.
- Seventeen African American students from San Francisco State have been named California Pre-Doctoral Program (Sally Casanova) Scholars between 2010-2020.
- Thirteen African American students supported by San Francisco State's COSE Student Enrichment Opportunities (SEO) fellowships between 2016-2020 have enrolled in Ph.D. programs.
As part of our initiative to encourage more African American/Black students to apply for fellowships, the Fellowships Office is publishing a brochure on the Graduate Studies website on San Francisco State’s African American/Black fellowship winners in Spring of 2021.

Support for the Black Unity Center and Student Organizations
The Black Unity Center (BUC) received CARES Act 3 funding to hire two new counselors to support African American students at SF State. The BUC has also developed a series of Zoom roundtable discussion in Fall 2020 to address the current challenges of African American communities and San Francisco State University.

- August 24: Black Unity Roundtable· August 27: Black Unity Mixer
- September 4: Black Unity Roundtable: Building Community
- September 9: #WellnessWednesdays with Eboni Alexandra
- September 15: Mind Matters – Men of Color and Networking on Campus
- September 24: Writing Personal Statements with Dr. Frederick Smith
- October 1: Black Unity Roundtable
- October 15: Black Leadership Empowerment Series Part 1: Career as Community
- October 22: Black Men's Lunch
- October 22: Black Leadership Empowerment Series Part 2: Leadership through Activism
- More events from the BUC and Division of Equity and Community Inclusion in the addendum.
In addition to the BUC events, the Men of Color Series launched five workshops this Fall exploring men of color, masculinities, and the importance of developing skills for academic and social success at SF State. The program will continue with the support of CARES Act 3 funding in Spring 2021. To further support our African American Students, the Division of Undergraduate Education and Academic Planning and Division of Equity and Community Inclusion hosted training for 78 professional and faculty advisors to serve our African American students better. Also, the Office of First-Year Experience hosted a peer mentor book club from August to November 2020 focused on the book How to Be an Anti-Racist.
PHILANTHROPIC SUPPORT

University Advancement welcomed Jeff Jackanicz as its new vice president in the Summer of 2020. Vice President Jackanicz brings a wealth of knowledge to SF State’s Advancement Division and a renewed commitment to equity and inclusion in fundraising at SF State. University Advancement engaged in practical and meta-analysis of the Department to engage in philanthropic activities to support Black Lives Matter at SF.

Practical:
- Hosting the Africana Studies chair welcome reception in December 2020.
- $20K contribution from Alumni Association as a gift toward Strikers Memorial.
- Exploring permission to submit an inquiry to the Mellon Foundation for Strikers Memorial.
- COES and GCOE are collaborating on a proposal for Spencer Foundation – expected submission in early 2021.
- Outreach to the VP at SF Foundation, Judith Bell
- Developing the prospect for potential individual donors for scholarships.
- Alex Sanchez, director of development for the COES & Anjali Billa, AVP for development, and VP Jackanicz, are presenting at COES department chairs meeting to collaborate with Advancement.
- Ten internal meetings on strategy for supporting BLM and COES fundraising.
- 5-10 donor meetings – both individual and foundations to support COES.

Meta:
- Hosted anti-Blackness education and antiracism education across Advancement in coordination with the Division of Equity and Community Inclusion.
- Additional work on building and affirming antiracist workplace and team norms with Blue Beyond Consulting.
In Fall 2020, Advancement welcomed two AVPs who are both women of color - Latinx and South Asian descent.

As the Fall term ends, University Advancement will continue its commitment to equity, inclusion, and philanthropic support for students of color.
The Division of Undergraduate Education and Academic Planning (DUEAP) has developed better pathways for double majors and minors in Ethnic Studies and created clear guidelines for transfer students from community colleges. In the Fall, DUAEP hosted four virtual curricular planning workshops for minors in Ethnic Studies or students curious about planning their general education alongside their minors.

Also, DUAEP has identified the top five feeder community colleges for Black students and their most common majors. The top 10 majors have been fully articulated as of Fall 2020.

The University Police Department (UPD) welcomed Reginald Parsons, AVP and Chief of Police. In the Fall semester, UPD has developed a series of campus trainings and launched the Safety Advisory Committee to review UPD policies and protocol. Also, UPD has provided training to Residential Life on de-escalating non-emergency complaints to reduce the use of law enforcement in non-emergencies.

In the Fall term, to support BLM at SF State, UPD did not fill eight vacant positions to give additional support to the Division of Equity and Community Inclusion. In doing this, Equity and Community Inclusion did not have to institute a 10% staff reduction this Fall as a result of State and University budget impacts. In addition, to support the action plan, CARES-3 funding was allocated to Counseling and Psychological Services (CAPS) to hire two new counselors for the fall term.

The Division of Equity and Community Inclusion has convened the Bias Incident Education team consisting of faculty and administration representatives. In the Fall, this team has developed a web-based form where campus community members can log on and report bias incidents directly to the Division of Equity and Community Inclusion. The website and form will launch in late Fall 2020 or early Spring 2021. In Addition, the Office of Equity Programs & Compliance (Title IX & Discrimination, Harassment & Retaliation) met in the Fall. The office will create a plan to communicate the Executive Order process for Spring 2021 implementation.
The Institute for Community and Civic Engagement (ICCE), Career Services & Leadership Development (CSLD), and the Black Unity Center (BUC) are working with external partners to create better pathways for African American student employment in the region. ICCE has done an internal review of partners and creating opportunities to increase African American organizational partnerships in the region.

The University is committed to creating a robust local pipeline in San Francisco. Recognizing the challenges educational institutions face in the COVID-19 crisis, the country is facing intensified racial inequities. Strengthening the pipeline to four-year universities like San Francisco State increases equity while also solidifying educational institutions’ role in San Francisco's economic recovery.

In coordination and consultation with City College of San Francisco, San Francisco Unified School District, and the mayor of San Francisco, and African American community leaders, SF State will develop and relaunch SF Promise and its commitment to educational equity in the region.

1) A description of the retention program(s) that will be created using the funding;

Project Description

The purpose of the proposed initiative is to create significant momentum in chair and faculty development to nurture and retain junior faculty and to understand why faculty leave during their probationary years. As student and faculty data show, we have made some progress towards the goal of increasing diversity in hiring over the past five years, but there is still a significant need for a much more targeted strategy for tenure-track faculty retention. Our initiative reduces systemic barriers in retention by building cultural competencies in our tenure-track faculty mentoring process across all departments and colleges. We focus on increasing awareness of the effects of implicit bias in decision making; on training departments and colleges to develop targeted retention and mentoring strategies; and on providing mandatory in-person development with a focus on department chairs and senior faculty. In addition, we offer leadership training to key individuals in the hiring process in order to sustain the progress beyond the time period of the initiative. These efforts expand on SF State’s Student Success and Graduation Initiative. Faculty hiring and development is one of the six pillars of our campus SSGI and an essential component of our plan to improve educational equity and eliminate opportunity gaps for all students at SF State. The current initiative accelerates our SSGI by focusing specifically on removing institutional barriers to retaining a diverse and inclusive faculty with an approach that can be sustained over time. The Office of Faculty Affairs and Professional Development will administer the initiative.

Chair and Faculty Development

Chairs are often overwhelmed by bureaucracy, untrained for the role, apathetically waiting out their rotations, lacking in sensitivity, or have forgotten what it was like to be an early career faculty member. Thus, faculty must look to other supportive figures if their department chairs cannot, or choose not to, play this role. Institutions need to examine the structures that inhibit department chairs from playing a role in fostering faculty members as organizational citizens, and to consider the guidance and priorities provided to chairs.

Where are the Faculty Leaders? Strategies and Advice for Reversing Current Trends

Adrianna Kezar, Jaime Lester, Rozana Carducci, Tricia Bertram Gallant and Melissa Contreras McGavin

Efforts to increase retention through mentoring require effective communications and multiple opportunities for junior faculty members. Although the culture of a department is not defined by its chair, faculty look to departmental leadership for how it is shaped. Providing chairs with the tools to achieve larger institutional goals of fostering an inclusive, nurturing environment in addition to the day-to-day demands of the position, can be overwhelming. Focusing on a discreet group of department chairs, we plan to offer mentoring workshops, as well as a faculty learning community for newly appointed department chairs (one year or newly appointed). The goal is to invite a representative group of chairs across all six colleges and the library to engage in community building and to strategize in creating effective mentoring networks. Because we feel that mentoring is one of the most crucial factors in the retention of faculty of color (all faculty, really) participation will be incentivized by providing stipends to participants.
Building on our model of a “peer-facilitated conversation approach” we developed and implemented for our Advancing Faculty Diversity in Tenure Track Hiring initiative, we aim to engage in conversations with chairs and faculty about their values and expectations regarding inclusion, equity and diversity in their departments and the impacts on faculty retention, increasing awareness among departmental leadership of the effects of implicit bias in decision making and to offer implicit bias training to key individuals in leadership positions in order to sustain the progress beyond the time period of the initiative. It may also apply to other departmental processes, such as RTP, department meetings, and/or other departmental committee processes. Citing the 2019 Campus Climate report, “SF State, with support from senior administrators and collaborative leadership, is in a prime position to actualize its commitment to promote an inclusive campus and to institute organizational structures that respond to the needs of its dynamic campus community.”

Faculty retention, in general, is an area in which we need to do much work. Over the past five years, faculty separations data show that the majority of separations each year are retirements. However, the data show that our campus experiences a high number of TT faculty resignations to accept other positions, or for other unknown reasons. Part of our plan is to develop an exit survey for faculty who resign so as to capture critical data points that can inform future department retention strategies.

Student ethnic diversity. SF State’s current student body is incredibly diverse, and drives our need to retain (and recruit) faculty of color. It is well known that student outcomes are significantly improved when they see themselves reflected in their instructors. At SFSU 19% of students are White and 81% are Under-Represented Minorities (URM) (Table 4). Latina/o students make up the largest group with 35%, followed by Asian American at 29%, African American at 6%, and other combined at 11%. Meanwhile, 44% of the faculty is Caucasian, 26% is Asian American, 7% is Latina/o, 5% is African American, and 18% is other. (For the purposes of this proposal Asian American includes Chinese, Filipinos, Asian-Indian, Native Hawaiians and Pacific Islanders, Guam-Chamorro, Vietnamese, Laotian, Japanese, and Korean; the “other” category includes two or more races, American Indian, and Unknown).

Faculty representation by rank. Diversity of faculty runs somewhat along rank. Assistant and associate professors are significantly more diverse than full professors. Almost 45% of our new faculty over the past couple of years are from underrepresented groups, which makes the imperative for good mentoring all the more pressing.
Budget:
The funding will go almost exclusively to honoraria for our team members. Team members will be asked to participate in 2-3 two-hour meetings in Summer, Fall, and Spring, for a total of up to 10 meetings. They will be asked to commit to and attend all meetings, but they will not be compensated for this time. However, team members will earn honoraria for conducting the conversation sessions both in Fall and in Spring. We found this to be the most effective and equitable approach to acknowledging their time and awarding honoraria. Given that there will be more limited funding in 2020-21, the proposed budget reflects a much more limited amount for honoraria than last year. The budget includes an honoraria allocation for additional assignments that will be key to the project (data analysis, presentation at conferences/meetings, etc.) as well a very modest allocation for hospitality for the two-hour meetings.

2) An explanation of the methodology you will be using to assess the success of your program(s);

To reiterate, our proposal aims to establish focus groups of chairs across colleges to increase belonging, community and inclusion by intentionally creating space for these conversations with the intent of emerging with actionable goals. We will aim these initial efforts at mid-size departments to strike a balance between impact and data management.

Workshops and Faculty Learning communities do not lend themselves easily to qualitative methods of assessment, but there is still useful data that can be gathered. We intend to hold focus groups with the Chairs involved in the spring of 2021 to assess the degree to which the implicit bias training, the FLC and the workshops have changed their thinking around and approach to mentoring. We will be assessing the mentoring plans they will have developed, as well as the way in which their thinking about mentoring as a primary goal of Chair leadership has developed.

At the beginning of the Fall 2021, we will hold additional focus groups to asses further development of these same outcomes.

In the Spring of 2022, we will hold focus groups with probationary faculty in the departments these Chairs lead to begin to collect data on the impact of the mentoring they have received, and comparing outcomes in reference to different mentoring plans across departments.

We believe that the development of Exit Interviews for faculty separating from the university during the probationary period will provide crucial data to consider changes as our mentoring program evolves.
3) A description of the ways you believe the program(s) will have an impact on your campus;

Two much-needed outcomes are expected: The retention of faculty of color; and an increased sense of genuine inclusion among those faculty. As with our previous initiative, and based on the feedback we received, we believe that these efforts will create a space for these conversations to happen where they otherwise would not. Inclusivity sessions were welcomed and appreciated, with department chairs and committee members reporting a positive effect on their process and their search. Two common questions we heard from committee members:

1. How can we extend this inclusion approach to the retention and support of our new faculty members (and any probationary faculty member)?
2. How can this inclusion effort extend beyond our search committee (e.g., “We need this in our department meetings …”).

Background
The Office of Faculty Affairs and Professional Development is pleased to be the recipient of a grant from the Chancellor’s Office for A Focus on Faculty Retention, applied for and awarded in Spring 2020, to be implemented in AY 2020-21. Proposal and Award letters attached as appendix.

As defined in our proposal, the goal of our initiative is to reduce systemic barriers in retention by building cultural competencies in our tenure-track faculty mentoring process across all departments and colleges. Focusing on increasing awareness of the effects of implicit bias in decision making; on training departments and colleges to develop targeted retention and mentoring strategies, our strategy is to focus on a discreet group of department chairs, we plan to offer mentoring workshops, as well as a faculty learning community for newly appointed department chairs (one year or newly appointed). The goal is to invite a representative group of chairs across all six colleges and the library to engage in community building and to strategize in creating effective mentoring networks. Because we feel that mentoring is one of the most crucial factors in the retention of faculty of color participation will be incentivized by providing stipends to participants.

Progress
At the writing of this report, the Office of Faculty Affairs and Professional Development is pleased to report that a group of fourteen chairs across the six colleges has been convened to undertake this work. Some chairs were nominated by their dean and others self-nominated. To date, the Faculty Retention Working Group has met for a total of four times this semester (Fall 2020) with another meeting scheduled for December. Each meeting is 90-minutes in length and has been comprised of an Introductory session in which members identified objectives and goals; a two-part Anti-racist training session, Interrupting Racism, sponsored and facilitated by the California Faculty Association (CFA); and a Listening Session to faculty of color on our campus.

The panelists for the Listening Session were six tenured faculty members who were nominated through Faculty Affairs or with the assistance of college offices (Deans/Associate Deans). All panelists identified as BIPOC faculty and were asked to share their experiences on our campus with small breakout groups within the Faculty Retention Working Group. No administrators were present at these sessions nor were the sessions recorded. Each group was asked take notes of key thoughts and ideas presented by the guest panelists, to be shared with the larger group.

Facilitation, scheduling and tracking of the sessions for this initiative is coordinated through AVP Carleen Mandolfo and Associate Dean Todd Roehrman in the Office of Faculty Affairs. Beyond scheduling and coordination, these efforts have included the creation of an iLearn site for the group where resources have been posted, such as key session recordings for reference, readings, podcasts and videos shared in the Anti-Racist trainings and an extensive bibliography (included as an appendix) compiled from individuals within the group, CEETL and CFA.
With these foundational sessions, the working group will continue to meet, broken out into smaller Learning Communities, to discuss and strategize on actions and recommendations for our campus. As the working group continues to meet throughout the academic year, we look forward to reconvening as the larger whole, hearing strategies and recommendations and develop an action plan for our faculty community.

Each member within the working group will receive a stipend at the end of the AY upon completion and their participation in the initiative. Panelists for the Listening Session will also be offered a stipend. All this and the fees associated with the anti-racist training sessions will be funded out of the Chancellor’s Office grant.

Campus efforts to recruit diverse faculty during the 2020-2021 faculty search process

Continuing with our practice of meeting with search committees developed in AY 2018-19 as part of our grant from the Chancellor’s Office for Advancing Faculty Diversity in Hiring, the Office of Faculty Affairs coordinated and met with the hiring committees for fifty-one (51) TT faculty searches in Fall 2019 for the 2019-2020 faculty search process. Although the number of searches has fallen off during COVID, the Office of Faculty Affairs continues to coordinate and meet with hiring committees such as the Search Committee for the AVP of Enrollment Management and for a new TT faculty search in the Department of Computer Science.

Implementing a collaborative approach, the formation of the Inclusion Leadership team remains our approach to bring together a diverse group of colleagues to help develop and administer the project. We continue to focus on the departmental search committee (with the department chair) as the unit of intervention, we engage a “peer-facilitated conversation approach”, rather than an “expert-led training model” resulting in peer-facilitated inclusivity sessions for each search committee with all participants expected to engage in a conversation with one another about their values and expectations re. inclusion, equity and diversity in hiring.
